Change Description

Detailed Description of the Change: The ATEX EN 60079-0:2012 standard validity has expired on July 6, 2021. This standard is the European Union directive for protection against explosive atmospheres. We no longer plan to continue supporting this standard by certifying the new EN60079-0:2018 standard.

Anticipated impact on Fit, Form and Function: Since the mentioned standard is no longer valid, we will not print related statements on the router certification label. We will remove this information from the product-related documentation as well. There is no other hardware or software change on the affected products.
